Statement of Significance

Last updated on -

The former garage, now known as De Bretts Antiques, is historically important as a substantially intact, purpose-built, Inter War motor garage (Criterion A). The building dates from a period when car ownership was increasing rapidly, creating a need for garages within the urban context. Although the former garage is relatively plain, its simplified Inter War architectural form and typology contribute to the commercial architecture of Mt Alexander Road (Criterion E).

Physical Description 1

A relatively small Inter War industrial building with a more decorative facade in front of an open plan industrial space. The facade is rendered and symmetrical. Above the double entrance doors, a simple but centrally located parapet has been located.

The facade is of a typical Inter War type with very limited ornamentation.
