Statement of Significance

Last updated on -

This site is considered to be of low local significance and represents the early 20th century use of the site as a Quarantine Station

Interpretation of Site Surface inspection of materials suggests an early 20th century origin. It is not known if the area had been used as a rubbish dump in earlier periods. The dates of the material suggests that the area was used as a rubbish dump during the Quarantine Station era - possibly resulting from the influx of people during the influenza pandemic of 1819.
