Physical Description 1

This is an unusual Bungalow style brick and reinforced concrete house finished in unpainted textured and plain cement. A string soldier- course of clinker bricks, Marseilles pattern roof tiles and (once stained) shingling provide colour relief. A reinforced concrete terrace across the front of the house provides one of the house's distinguishing elements and the concrete and wire-fabric fence another. The same fence continues across the frontage of a 1950s brick villa adjoining which was evidently once part of Matlock's grounds.

Integrity

External integrity

Generally original but shingles painted over and possibly some reglazing.

Physical Description 2

Streetscape

Early part of a generally later residential streetscape (1930-40s).
