Physical Description 1

This modest inter-war weatherboard hipped roof post office resembles many of the same era built in brick or stuccoed brick (see also Nar Nar Goon, Pakenham). It has Marseilles pattern terra-cotta roof tiles, timber double-hung windows and an entry porch with simple side lights. There is a small weatherboard building with a hip tiled roof at the rear, and an earlier corrugated iron clad building further back on the lot.

The post office compares with the post office at Yarragon (which is very similar and also intact), and at Garfield (which has been altered). A similar post office at Pakenham has been demolished.
