Statement of Significance

Last updated on -

The McCutcheon farm is of significance to the Cardinia Shire as an adeptly styled and substantial concrete block house and outbuildings set at the end of a long conifer drive and adjacent to some mature planting such as the palm. It is sited in a closer settlement part of the district formed by draining swamp lands for farming. Anthony McCutcheon, farmer, has the longest association with the site and was there from 1918. The farm complex has historical significance as a property established on a Swamp Land Leasehold in the post-First World War period.

Physical Description 1

This is a concrete masonry (over-painted) farm house with brick chimneys and return verandah, and high hipped and gabled roof bays in the Queen Anne manner. A Canary Island date palm, Monterey cypress, Monterey pine, a semi-mature oak, pepper trees and other exotics combine with a long conifer (Monterey cypress) lined drive going west to the 8 Mile Road (now disused). There are early out buildings, one also built from concrete blocks.

Physical Conditions

The concrete masonry has been painted but otherwise the house appears externally near original.
