Physical Description 1

Typical of the Federation or Queen Anne style, 232 Rosanna Road is an asymmetrical composition with a return verandah, hipped Marseilles patterned tiled roof, tall red brick chimneys and bracketed overhanging gables. The verandah is supported on timber posts with a slatted timber frieze. An octagonal tower is positioned on the corner, and has a steeply pitched octagonal tiled roof. Internal alterations have apparently been carried out for its occupation as part of the Sisters of Mercy Novitiate.
