Statement of Significance

Last updated on - September 12, 2023

What is significant?

How is it significant?

Why is it significant?

Architecturally, the house is distinguished by the ornate verandah detailing and form, as combined with that of the side verandah. Otherwise it is typical of its era and a well- preserved Bendigo example.

Historically, built for Francisco Genardeni, it inspires further investigation of Genardeni's nationality (Italian?) and personal history, given the family's long-term residence in the district.

Physical Description 1

This timber villa resembles many other houses from the Edwardian era, with the exception of the ornate verandah frieze work and arching. Composed with a projecting room bay facing each street frontage, the house has a return verandah terminating on each. Each projecting bay has a half-timbered gable overhanging a rectangular window bay equipped with casement glazing. The main roof is, typically, in a Dutch-hip form, clad with Marseilles pattern terra-cotta and fitted with ornamental ridging. The red brick chimneys have corbelled tops and stucco panels set in the shafts. Another unusual element is the long verandah down one side of the house.

Integrity

External - Generally original, except for the new paling front fence (original picket remnant at side).

Physical Description 2

Landscape - The landscape, with its clipped evergreen shrubs, has a strong 1920s-30s character and supports the house era.
