History

Christmas Hill is named after David Christmas, a lone shepherd who lost his way en route to Joseph Stevenson's run in 1842. In 1851 Henry Dendy and James McPherson held between them all of the land that now forms the Christmas Hills area. The boundary was established by arow of blazed trees running northward from Yerin gorge to Mount Graham and on to Watson Creek, it was later demarcated by a dirt track (Pretty Sally Track, 1863) and then renamed Ashmore Road.

In 1865, Robert Lorimer secured the first land title and established the Flying Squirrel Hotel on teh property as well as operating the first unofficial post office in the area. The property was sold to the Conolly family following Lorimer's death. Hamilton Sloan, a successful gold miner at One Tree Hill selected land adjoining Lorimer's at the south and extending east with the northern party of Pretty Sally Track dividing the portions.

Several civic services were established in the late nineteenth century...(for full report see site card).
