Statement of Significance

Last updated on - September 12, 2007

What is significant?

Castlemaine's Theatre Royal was built in 1858 to replace the first canvas and timber Theatre Royal which burnt down in 1857. Local residents raised a public loan to enable the lessees Messrs Rainer and Gingell to rebuild the theatre. The result was a more substantial building constructed of random coursed local sandstone and brick with a roof of Morewood and Rogers galvanised iron tiles. The new theatre had a capacity for 225 people in the stalls and 675 in the 'Pit'. The front section of the building housed a hotel known as the Royal Hotel which closed in 1910 after a hearing before the Licences Reduction Board. The theatre continued and adapted through various stages as a bioscope and picture theatre from the early twentieth century.

Extensive alterations took place in 1938-39 to convert the theatre into a cinema with a stalls area and dress circle accommodating 972 patrons. The building's facade was rendered and given a Moderne styling characterised by strong horizontal bands, a stepped parapet and glazed decorative tiles to wall surfaces beneath the awning. The 1930s Moderne inspired detailing extends throughout the building's interior. The key elements are the oak stair, 1930s light fittings, exit signs and the fluted pilasters and patterned friezes on the walls and ceiling of the auditorium. From the early 1980s the building was also used as a discothèque, theatre, live music venue and theatre restaurant, as well as a cinema. Sections of nineteenth century decorative schemes including wallpaper survive on interior walls hidden by later accretions. The building continues to operate as a cinema.

How is it significant?

Theatre Royal, Castlemaine is of historical and social significance to the State of Victoria.

Why is significant?

Theatre Royal, Castlemaine is of historical significance as the earliest known continuously operating theatre in Victoria and as a rare surviving goldfields theatre in Victoria.

Theatre Royal, Castlemaine is of historical and social significance for its long and continuous associations with popular forms of mass entertainment since the mid nineteenth century. Permit Exemptions

General Exemptions:

General exemptions apply to all places and objects included in the Victorian Heritage Register (VHR). General exemptions have been designed to allow everyday activities, maintenance and changes to your property, which don't harm its cultural heritage significance, to proceed without the need to obtain approvals under the Heritage Act 2017.

Places of worship: In some circumstances, you can alter a place of worship to accommodate religious practices without a permit, but you must notify the Executive Director of Heritage Victoria before you start the works or activities at least 20 business days before the works or activities are to commence.

Subdivision/consolidation: Permit exemptions exist for some subdivisions and consolidations. If the subdivision or consolidation is in accordance with a planning permit granted under Part 4 of the Planning and Environment Act 1987 and the application for the planning permit was referred to the Executive Director of Heritage Victoria as a determining referral authority, a permit is not required.

Specific exemptions may also apply to your registered place or object. If applicable, these are listed below. Specific exemptions are tailored to the conservation and management needs of an individual registered place or object and set out works and activities that are exempt from the requirements of a permit. Specific exemptions prevail if they conflict with general exemptions.

Find out more about heritage permit exemptions here.

Specific Exemptions:

General Conditions: 1. All exempted alterations are to be planned and carried out in a manner which prevents damage to the fabric of the registered place or object. General Conditions: 2. Should it become apparent during further inspection or the carrying out of works that original or previously hidden or inaccessible details of the place or object are revealed which relate to the significance of the place or object, then the exemption covering such works shall cease and Heritage Victoria shall be notified as soon as possible. General Conditions: 3. If there is a conservation policy and plan endorsed by the Executive Director, all works shall be in accordance with it. Note: The existence of a Conservation Management Plan or a Heritage Action Plan endorsed by the Executive Director, Heritage Victoria provides guidance for the management of the heritage values associated with the site. It may not be necessary to obtain a heritage permit for certain works specified in the management plan. General Conditions: 4. Nothing in this determination prevents the Executive Director from amending or rescinding all or any of the permit exemptions. General Conditions: 5. Nothing in this determination exempts owners or their agents from the responsibility to seek relevant planning or building permits from the responsible authorities where applicable. Minor Works : Note: Any Minor Works that in the opinion of the Executive Director will not adversely affect the heritage significance of the place may be exempt from the permit requirements of the Heritage Act. A person proposing to undertake minor works may submit a proposal to the Executive Director. If the Executive Director is satisfied that the proposed works will not adversely affect the heritage values of the site, the applicant may be exempted from the requirement to obtain a heritage permit. If an applicant is uncertain whether a heritage permit is required, it is recommended that the permits co-ordinator be contacted.
