Physical Description 1

Nalang is a single storey brick bungalow. A main gable shelters a small porch, and another gable protrudes through the concrete tiled roof. Each gable is decorated with timber shingles. The upper section of the walls are rendered, with the lower sections and verandah piers remaining as face clinker brick. A shingled bay window on the front facade is matched by two similar bays on the side. The main entry is at the side of the house and is sheltered by a small portico, pergola like in form. The fence uses the same design elements, with a bluestone plinth, clinker brick piers and a broad timber picket between the piers. The timber front gate sits between two tall brick piers which support bracketed pergola-like rafters.

Key Architectural Elements: intact house and front fence
