Physical Description 1

Built high on timber footings, this weatherboard cottage is similar to a number erected in Berwick around the 1920s, examples remaining in Langmore Lane, High Street, and Kensworth Cottage in Scotsgate Way. Architectural elements typical of the architectural style of the period are intact and include lattice in the front gable vent, plain diagonal timber verandah brackets and plain wide architraves. Two Italian cypresses mark the stepped entrance to this cottage, creating an authentic garden setting.
