Statement of Significance

Last updated on - May 28, 2008

The Commerce House building and the adjoining Commercial Travellers Association (CTA) were built for the Association in 1913; the latter as their offices and club and the former as an investment building. Both steel-framed buildings, they were designed by the architects, H W & F B Tompkins, and are distinctive examples of the Edwardian neo-baroque styles. The buildings are expressive of the role of Flinders Street in commerce and of the Commercial Travellers Association's desire to promote better accommodation for its members.
