Statement of Significance

Last updated on - August 3, 2005

A single-manual organ of five stops built by Hill & Son, London, in 1872 for export to Melbourne. Its early history is unknown before its installation at Yarraville. Apart from the obliteration of the original diapering of the facade pipes by gold paint during a recent restoration, the instrument remains essentially intact and is the least altered example of Hill's work remaining in Victoria.
