Statement of Significance

Last updated on - April 19, 2005

The pair of terrace houses at 336-338 Dorcas Street, South Melbourne, probably built in the 1880s by a local builder, are of local architectural significance. They are of interest for employing elaborate polychromatic brickwork typically found in structures of the "Boom era" in the 1880s, to decorate a very simple symmetrical elevation of a pair of terraces more characteristic of the 1850s.
