Statement of Significance

Last updated on - July 18, 2006

One of the finest and largest churches erected by the Australian Brotherhood of the Church of Christ, with an exceptional Baroque classical facade, said to be based on Christopher Wren's reredos at Temple Church, London. The church was built in 1888 - 9 to the design of the architect Jonathan Rankine, a member of the congregation and has in recent times been internally adapted for use as a Municipal Library.
