Horticultural value
Particularly old
Outstanding example of species

This tree is the first of the species to be on the Register. The original property was originally owned by Isabella and Edward Outhwaite and was called "Yarook". It is likely that the Outhwaites built the house and planted the tree around 1897

The tree is growing adjacent to the fenceline with one large branch protruding through it. There is also concrete paving right up to its trunk line over all the roots

September 2012: it was reported that at least half the canopy had been removed.
