Statement of Significance

Last updated on - August 23, 2005

The former Tarnagulla Wesleyan Church, built in 1865, is of local architectural and historical significance as an expression of the enthusiasm and strength of local Methodism at Sandy Creek (Tarnagulla) in particular, and throughout the central Victorian Goldfields in general. Designed by notable and prolific architects Crouch and Wilson, this simple Gothic revival church with spirelets is notable for its two-colour Flemish bond brickwork and for its hillside tree-grove siting in the very midst of the former diggings.
