Statement of Significance

Last updated on - September 26, 2005

A single-manual instrument of six speaking stops built in 1871 by George Fincham, of Richmond, for St Philip's Church, Collingwood and among the earliest intact examples of his work to survive. It is of particular note for its decorated facade pipes, thought to be the most elaborate early indigenous decorative scheme to survive. It is also unusual for a small organ in that the grained oak casework includes metal pipes of 8ft speaking length.
