Statement of Significance

Last updated on - June 22, 2005

A stuccoed brick church of 1930, designed by either Murray Forster or Garvin & Eathorne, which is quite idiosyncratic in detail and gains its distinctive character from the eclectic and not entirely felicitous low relief cement decoration. The interior, by contrast, is of particular interest for the high quality of its stained glass, which includes work by Brooks Robinson and Mathieson & Gibson.
