Rare or Localised

An attractive tree with a narrow crown. This species is uncommon in cultivation in Victoria. Other known examples occur at Marysville and State plantation at Narbethong. The tree has attractive scaly bark, grey in colour. The many elm suckers nearby should be removed and a Fraxinus ornus is growing west of the tree. The park also contains a number of fine specimens including Pinus nigra var.maritima, Pinus ponderosa, Cupressus torulosa and many fine Elms and Oaks.

The tree is located opposite entrance to Shankey Reserve.
