Contribution to landscape
Outstanding example of the species

The tree is a mature example of this species and makes an excellent contribution to the landscape. It is a prominent landmark in the area. It has a very solid trunk to about 2.5m which then divides into five spreading limbs. Its bark is vivid pink with blue-grey patches. It is claimed that the tree was originally part of a large suburban garden which was acquired by Vic Roads to facilitate the construction of the Monash Freeway. It is located at the end of Elm Road, less than 100m from the car park on the north east side of Monash Freeway.
