Statement of Significance

Last updated on - December 17, 2008

Archaeological: The site is comprised of a few scatters. These are however extensive and would provide a real time capsule of the period between 1876-1915. The scatter in the North East corner was probably a dump site, but may be contaminated by rubbish from the church adjacent, which operated until 1960.

Historical: The site relates to the themes of education and developing rural economies particularly struggling with remoteness, hardship and failure.

Scientific: The site has potential to provide archaeological evidence for the types of activities and resources used during the turn of the century by a small, but once busy community in rural Victoria.

Social: The site is significant to the people of Terrick Terrick East area.
