Interpretation of Site

Heritage Inventory Interpretation: Whilst clearing a portion of the Carshalton site, the remains of a small stone cottage were discovered. Work was halted and as part of our permit condition, I recorded the remains. On inspection it was apparent that this site was not of significance as it was in highly dilapidated state. As many other sites like this exist in Bendigo, many of which in much better condition, I allowed the company to continue with their works programme as soon as the site recording was complete.
