VHR history

Very large (44.9 metres long x 10 metres wide), iron fastened. The remains appear to those of a large sailing vessel, heavily framed, no evidence of yellow metal or copper alloy sheathing. The M.A.A.V. has surveyed the site.
 Timber samples indicate North American origin. Probably abandoned on this site between 1910 and 1923, though the vessel would be likely to be considerably older than this. Now under landfill, geofabric and stone batter wall on site of Pier 35 development. Has subsided under pressure of landfill as Coode Island silt has compacted.
 May have operated as a barge, ferry or hulk and since abandoned.
